Dear José,

I hope all goes well with you and your family. I am publishing a book of vignettes of lovable people I have known well. (You are not qualified, but only because for this very select club one must be dead, since it is a form of canonization, although a private one!) One of my subjects is Le Senne.

Would you be so very kind as to look at the enclosed list of his published works and tell me of any errors or omissions that you find in it.

I have never seen a copy of his posthumous work. Can you provide the date? Nor have I ever seen an edition of the INTRODUCTION A LA PHILOSOPHIE earlier than the one I own, 1939, although I know it did appear in an earlier form, the date of which is, I understand, 1921.

This book of mine will be my 26th and will not appear till late 1983.

If you have any news of Bryn Mawr I'll be most interested to hear of it. I hope to be in Philadelphia for a few days in late November this year. Is Milton still on this side of the veil?

Betty is well. The children are very grown-up as will be Jaime. Betty joins in sending you best remembrances and hasta la vista.
