

November 22-81

Dear José

I read your letter several times and I am deeply appreciative of the time and care you gave to my work. I will write conclusions; they are necessary. There is much that I would like to say concerning the meaning and influence which your words have for me, but I have the feeling that you know this already. I am very pleased that you will send this essay to Spain. There was so much I wanted to express in this letter, but words don't come.

I will call you before you leave for Mexico. I you leave N.Y.C. we can meet. Please give Priscilla my hundred regards and ask her if I can read her lecture. Perhaps she would send a copy.

Please accept my kindest regards and deepest respect.
