Dear Professor Mora:

The text for the anthology of Spanish philosophy is about to be sent to the press. But a problem has arisen concerning the selection from your writing. Is the selection you sent me last fall the same as that we had agreed upon in Spain the previous spring? The first piece for which you granted permission in a letter of March 18, 1966, was to be called "Experience, Language and Reality." The manuscript you sent me is entitled "On Taking Things for Granted," and does not seem to me to be the same essay. The original one, as you recall, was to be taken from a book which was in preparation and which was to be published, I believe, by the University of California Press.

I wonder if you would clarify this matter for me right away. It is a matter of great urgency because the whole manuscript is now ready to go to the printer and this has me exceedingly puzzled. I shall be looking forward to word from you at the very first possible instance.

With cordial expressions of highest personal esteem, I remain

Very sincerely yours,

A. Robert Caponigri
