

EPPI
Abbottford Road & Henry Avenue
Philadelphia, Penn.

May 3, 1963

Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

I wonder if you could send to me, either in a letter or through Peggy Healy or Pat McPherson, the address you'll have during the summer months? I presume that you'll be abroad as you usually are. I hope to be engaged in a work of some variety soon- either my writing specifically (a major difficulty there is, however, that it is difficult for me to imagine working away from my typewriter) or else a rereading of Platonic dialogues and of such writers as Thucydides. This kind of reading might prove more beneficial to me than writing in view of the fact that I don't and can't here have the typewriter –not to mention various dictionaries and specific works of scholarship. In any case, I am determined to return to some variety of real work.

You would be certainly be most welcome if you chose to visit me soon, but if you do not, I understand the strain from work & from other cares that you are under and the fact that it may keep you very near BMC for 24 hours a day.

Sincerely,
[Signature]

P.S. Is your apt. rented for the second semester? I might be able to occupy it, if you should still wish me to.