Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

I am much upset. Today I have concluded that I simply cannot make the finances in respect to your coming work out at all properly. I was assured by my Chairman (an acting chairman this year, a Jesuit) that we could of course work them out readily. I assumed that he meant he'd handle the red tape. He hasn't, and I think he doesn't know how to. I have tried but unsuccessfully.

I refuse to hear you come except at a decent lecture fee. So, please, don't volunteer to come at an unsuitable fee. I cannot have that. You did that for me once, but I can't but blush even for that once.

I'll write more in a day or two. I am upset now sending you this news. It is of course ultimately my own fault, for having been over confident that my chairman could actually have access to any pursue strings here.

Sincerely,
[Signatura]
