BRYN MAWR COLLEGE
BRYN MAWR PENNA.

October 24, 1955

Dear Mr. Mora:

The beginning of the year brought great activity - you were quite right in thinking so. But we are well started, and things would be moving along smoothly for me as well as the College if I hadn't complicated my life by taking the Chairmanship of the American Council on Education outside the College and here at BMC adding to my teaching.

I am writing quickly to say first that I am glad you had a holiday. It is probably only when you are travelling from one city to another that you persuade yourself to take one! And I am sure everyone in the family enjoyed the trip.

And then to ask if you would like me to take up the question of your book. I could call Mr. Taubes in Princeton to ask him where matters stand or - perhaps better and more promising since speed is important in relation to Mr. Trask - write directly to Mr. Arnold. I should be glad to see what a little prodding would do, but I didn't like to write without asking you in case you would prefer me not to. In writing I shouldn't of course commit you but only in view of your absence and the importance of continued work on the translation, ask when a decision could be made.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Mr. Jose Ferrater Mora
