Dear Professor Ferater-Mora:

Mr. William Farnon, one of my colleagues here in the Philosophy Department at La Salle College, has advised me that you are willing to consider the possibility of giving a formal lecture to the faculty and students of the College sometime during this academic year.

I have decided to arrange a series of lectures around the theme of "Philosophy International," and include talks on Soviet, Oriental, European, and British philosophy. The series would be presented in the period from the 10th to the 17th of April (1967).

I would like to know whether you would be interested in participating by giving the talk on European philosophy. I will supply additional details if you are interested in the general idea. Our usual stipend for such a talk is $100, but this is adjustable. Please advise me as soon as possible whether you would like to participate.

Incidentally, I found your Philosophy Today quite helpful in connection with a dissertation I completed a few years ago on the notion of value in Sartre's existentialism.

Thank you very much for considering this proposition, and I hope to hear from you soon.

Sincerely,

J. C. Mihalich
