Dear Dr. Ferrater Mora:

The editors of AMERICAS magazine have enjoyed your article on cultural trends in the United States, and will publish it in the February English issue. It will also appear in the March Spanish and Portuguese issues.

In the course of preparing the manuscript for the printer, we supplied some first names and book titles, and we would like to be sure that our identifications were correct. They are as follows:

On page three, Nicolas Nabokov was changed to Vladimir Nabokov.

On page four, the new work by Tennessee Williams was identified as Period of Adjustment.

On page six, for the English edition, Rostow's own names for his stages were used.

On page eight, Paul Goodman's book was identified as Growing Up Absurd, (not as Our Visit to Niagara).

Also on page eight, Weber was identified as Max Weber.

If any of these identifications are erroneous, we would appreciate your letting us know as quickly as possible.

Very truly yours,

Flora L. Phelps
