

Dear Mr. Fenster-More —

Hello, how are you?

I know that you are very busy at the moment, so, instead of taking your time for a conference, I thought to convey my message by mail. It is this:

My paper is progressing, but it is progressing much more slowly than I had expected. What there is of it is very rough and needs revision. Under the circumstances, I am sure that I shan't be able to hand it in on Wednesday or Thursday, as we arranged. It should be finished by Friday morning, but I should like to have time to revise it; it will probably take two days to type it. Thus, I propose to pass it in sometime on Monday. I understand from Phyllis Adler, who is doing her paper under Dr. Nelson's supervision, that Dr. Nelson is not particular about the date the papers are due. Apparently, Mrs. Marshall told him that they are due whenever a professor decides that they are due. In the light of this clarification, I hope that my proposal will be agreeable to you. If not, I shall be glad to come and explain my situation in more detail.

Stefanie