

Dear Jose--

I just discovered something which I thought you would want to know--two things, as a matter of fact.

(1) I was right about the difficulty of entering Architecture: it is simply the result of a narrowly limited enrollment.

(2) More importantly, although the College of Arts and Architecture is accredited, its School of Architecture is not. Accreditation was lifted after the last evaluation a couple of years ago. Although it might be reinstated at the next evaluation (I don't know when this will be), at present it is in academic Siberia. Word has it that this state of affairs accurately reflects the fact that the school isn't very good. About that I don't know; but I thought you'd be interested.

Sincerely,

Bill
