Dear Jose,

Many thanks for your letter and also for the two books. The latter arrived only yesterday. It will take me some time to read them (a) because I am swamped and (b), no less importantly, because I read Spanish at snail's pace. No, I have seen neither before and look forward to them.

I have put your letter and attachment in my ANGELS folder, so you will be in the best of company while I am getting round to dealing with all these delightful trouvailles.

I wish I could write more just now, but I am truly swamped with a variety of things, including the writing of books, to which (as you and I know well) there is said to be "no end."

I'm glad to know that Milton is still in the present embodiment and that you and Priscilla are flourishing both here and en España.

Best greetings as always to you both.

Geddes
