Dear Geddes,

Glad to hear about your forthcoming 26th book. I have scarcely reached the 22nd but since one is a four-volume, four-thousand-page opus, and another is a two-volume collection, this may be a tie. I am also, as yourself, albeit belatedly, the author of a novel, to be published in Madrid, Spain, September 30, 1982.

I enclose herewith the Le Senne bibliography at the end of my entry "Le Senne, René" in <sup>the</sup> my 1979 edition of my "Diccionario de filosofía". There is complete agreement between your titles (and dates) and mine, so we may assume that we are both right. On the other hand, I did not list (my fault) La dé-couverte de Dieu, 1955. The book is in the Bryn Mawr library (231.L565d), ordered by you, January 19, 1956. I am enclosing herewith a photocopy of its "Avant-Propos" and of its "Table des Matières."

I have practically no news of Bryn Mawr, although I still keep a little cubicle in the Library. Milton is still, doggedly, on this side of the veil. I retired, re-married, and re-located (address, supra). I will be very happy to see you in November when you come to Philadelphia. In the last year I have been travelling to Europe, particularly to Spain (mostly for lectures) almost once every two months, but it is most likely that I will be in this area by late November. Please ring me up: (215) 527.3263. If an answering machine reacts to your voice, please leave a message. My second wife, Priscilla (formerly Cohn), a Bryn Mawr PhD. was a student of yours, and will be happy to meet you again.

Best remembrances, hasta la vista.
