Dear Mr. Ferrater

I was beginning to think that I had at last experienced the Abgrund - viz, by dropping my "Heid and Eck." study down the bottomless pit at The Journal for the Hist of Phil. However, they just replied and I send you copies of their letter and enclosures.

What do you make of it? What do you think of the chances of a revised paper being accepted?
Some of the charges are outrageous, some are on target. At the very least, I quoted some confusions for these readers. Should I try elsewhere?

I'll give you a call after you've had the opportunity to look over the enclosed.

Cordially,

John Caputo
