New College,
Oxford.

Dear Professor Vicens Vives

You may remember that we met in Barcelona two years ago, with John Elliot, and I am very glad that you have now come to Oxford. I am only sorry that your first lecture was arranged rather hastily, for a day when I have to be in London, and so have to miss it. (I had reserved two other days for you earlier, but there was some misunderstanding at that time.) Anyway I am looking forward to your second lecture, and hope that you and your wife will be taking luncheon with us on Friday, 3rd. December. Would you come to our house, 8, St. Aldate's, (which is immediately opposite the Post Office, and has a yellow door) at 1 o'clock? We are greatly looking forward to seeing you.

Yours sincerely

Hugh Trevor-Roper
