Dear Professor Ferrater-Mora:

We are planning to publish the first issue of our Journal early next year. I am very anxious to have you write us an article for the first issue, on any topic you choose, so long as it is in philosophy of religion or the history of philosophy of religion. Perhaps you would like to write on Heidegger's philosophy of religion or some topic related to Heidegger or phenomenology. I would very much like to have an article from that area for our first issue.

You may have an appropriate article by you on any topic, so long as it is in philosophy of religion or the history of philosophy of religion. I wish it for the first issue which we hope to publish early in the new year. Each issue will be 64 pages. Consequently ten printed pages would be a desirable length for each paper, but a few more pages would be all right. Please write me that you will send me an article, and approximately when it may be expected.

I greatly desire to have you as one of about ten associate editors of the Journal. This position would involve occasionally reading a manuscript, giving advice to the editor, and so on. It would not involve any busywork. Please write me that you will accept this position.

I will be deeply grateful if you can help me in these two matters.

Sincerely yours,

Edgar H. Henderson
