Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

No, I don't think I asked you any question that you omitted to answer. So I shall expect a telephone call from you around five or six o'clock next Tuesday afternoon. I hope that you'll have a pleasant or at least an uneventful journey up here.

I look forward to hearing what you'll have to say about Idealism in consequence of your having revisited it. I look forward to being able to introduce two or three of the pleasant people here to you and you to them. And--quite as much--I look forward to being for a little while in the company of an old friend again. One of my classes has gone unsatisfactorily recently (the other two go well, I think), and this has dispirited me. And one's spirits always hit a low point anyway between Thanksgiving and Christmas, don't you think?

I enclose a notice of your lecture. We are holding it ⁱⁿ a medium-sized classroom. Naturally, I want some people to come and hear you; but I don't really want too many to come, because I think the occasion will be most pleasant and interesting if it can remain an informal one.

Again, I hope that you'll have a pleasant journey up.

Sincerely,

J. J. —
