FAIRFIELD, CONNECTICUT

DEPARTMENT OF PHILOSOPHY

April 9, 1968

Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

I had expected to be driving down to Bryn Mawr late tomorrow, in order to spend a long weekend there before our Easter holidays come to an end. I am having to change these plans, however, and so I am going to miss seeing you at this time (perhaps I can come during the time of final examinations here, but I shall have to wait and see).

I very much want to find out about Kroll, however. He was accepted by the College to enter, wasn't he? I haven't heard from him and I feel rather uncomfortable not knowing in final terms about this matter. If the College has offered him acceptance (even though not money), I think that he will choose to come. If the College hasn't offered him acceptance--well, surely something could yet be done about this? My name will be mud here at Fairfield, of course, if I can't succeed in getting acceptance for a brilliant student. And he is brilliant, and he has a fine, discerning mind. So please write me.

A second matter of much less importance, but one I'd like your view of. Shouldn't I, by now, have received word from Filosofia about my reprints? I mean, actually, shouldn't I have received the reprints from the journal by now? Nothing has shown up in the mail.

I am just catching up with things during these spring holidays. I hope that I can<sup>q1</sup> sufficiently organized (intellectually, emotionally, and physically--and by that latter word I mean in respect of file cases and the like) during this coming summer so that next year I won't be so perpetually behind in things. I'm not to teach this summer, thank goodness. I hope, in fact, not to teach any summer in the near future. It was grueling doing so last summer. I do hope to get two more articles from ~~my~~ thesis prepared for publication, <sup>this summer</sup>. Preparing these will take just a little bit of rewriting (the "Cartesian Lucidity" was in no way rewritten). And I've got to decide which journals to try them out on.

I do hope to see you before you go off this summer.

Sincerely,

Jul: -
