Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

I have received the promotion and consequently tenure. It will probably yet be a couple of weeks before I receive a contract with my salary indicated. I think that it will be probably be an acceptable one, but I am not simply counting on this outcome. I shall let you know what I am offered. If it is too little, I shall try to apply more pressure to get increased.

A week or so ago, to my dismay, I learned that my student Thomas Merrill had somehow failed to make his application to Bryn Mawr complete. He has taken steps now to get it so, & I presume that you in the Department soon will be asked to admit him or reject him. I hope that you can admit him. He is very able, very serious –so I think B.M.C. would be the place for him. He writes with clarity and grace, and he responds well to these being placed consequential intellectual demands upon him.

Sincerely,

[signatura]
