Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

Would you please do a favor for me? I need to know what volume it is that Schrecker's essay "La méthode cartésienne et la logique" is to be found. I know that it was originally published in one of the French journals in 1937, one of those housed in Miss Stearns's office. But it is also reprinted as one of a group of essays about Descartes in a book. It is information about that book that I need, because I need to be able to order it through inter-library loan (maybe the journal could be sent me on inter-library loan from Bryn Mawr, but I know the book can be). The book is with all the other books on Descartes in the West Wing, as I recall; but I have no recollection whatsoever of its title. I think maybe it has a red cover. I should appreciate very much your finding out which one it is for me; I need it myself and my senior essay student needs it, too.

Sincerely,

J. J. -

I don't think you have this listed in the Dictionary.
My copy is on loan
to someone right now & I can't check.
