Dear Mr. Furwater Moore,

I am much upset. Today I have concluded that I simply cannot make the finances in respect to your coming work out as all properly. I was assured by my Chairman (an acting chairman this year, a Jesuit) that we could in course work these out readily. I assumed that he meant he'd handle the red tape. He hasn't, and I think he doesn't know how to. I have tried, but unsuccessfully.

I refuse to have you come except at a decent return fee.
So please don't volunteer to come at an unmetable fee.
I cannot have that. You did that for me once, but I can't but blush even for that once.

I'll write you in a day or two. I am upset now sending you this news. It is a shame ultimately my own fault, for having been overconfident that my chairman could actually have access to any proceedings here.

Sincerely,

J. L. —
