Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

I may have to miss seeing you next week. Earlier I planned to come to Bryn Mawr around the 10th or the 13th. As of yesterday, I was planning to drive down on the 20th. But now I am informed by the Citroën men who handle my car that it has such a bad clutch bearing that the bearing and probably the clutch itself must be replaced right away. They have ordered the bearing and the clutch from the factory, and they expect them to arrive here in Fairfield on Monday. Or at least they say they expect them to arrive here then. If they do and the men install them right away, I can come ahead and drive down on Tuesday, the 20th, as I've planned to do. But if the bearing and the clutch ^{come} ~~are~~ a day or two later, I shall myself be a day or two later, too, and shall be in danger of missing you.

If I do miss you, I'll see you in August. It is my intention to return sometime during that month for another short visit.

A good summer abroad to you and your wife whether I see you or not next week.

Sincerely,

Julia
