Professor José Ferrater Mora
Department of Philosophy
Bryn Mawr College
Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Dear Professor Ferrater Mora,

Some time ago you were kind enough to read my Master's thesis on Unamuno, as well as to discuss Unamuno's philosophy with me at a meeting at Princeton. Since receiving my Master's degree at the New School, I have been working on my Doctorate, also at the New School, which I now expect to finish in June of this year.

At the present time I am also seeking a teaching position in Philosophy for the coming academic year, and have written concerning this matter to the Chairman of your Department at Bryn Mawr College.

I am writing this letter to inform you of this, since you were familiar with a portion of my graduate work in Philosophy through the reading of my thesis and from my professor, Dr. Hans Jonas.

In the event that there is not an opening at the present time at Bryn Mawr for which I may apply, Dr. Jonas suggested to me that perhaps you would be kind enough to write a letter on my behalf to Professor J. M. Anderson at Pennsylvania State University, where I have applied for a definite opening, expressing your opinion of my study of Unamuno which you previously gave to my professors at the New School.

I wish to express again my appreciation for the interest you have previously taken in my work, and I sincerely hope that my request will not inconvenience you in any way.

Sincerely yours,

Fred Kersten
