Dear Sr. Ferrater Mora:

I am not usually a collector of autographs, but I would very much appreciate yours on the enclosed. It was such a pleasant surprise to run across its [hating?] during one of my avid perusals of Publishers' Weekly; it is not often that I see therein two such familiar names. (Somehow I have stumbled into the publishing business-editorial work in a rewarding experience, I find, and it enables one to keep up with the book world.) I am also enjoying another kind of association with academic life – it is a long way from the Gothic Halls of [Ivory?] to the cornfields of Illinois, and a longer way from faculty “brat” to student to faculty wife, but it is good to be still a part of it. I hope you and your wife are well.

With warmest regards
