

New York University
A private university in the public service

Department of Philosophy
503 Main Building
Washington Square
New York, N.Y. 10003
Telephone: (212) 598-3262

January 9, 1987

Professor J. Ferrater Mora
1518 Willowbrook Lane
Villanova, PA 19085

Dear Professor Ferrater Mora:

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself as the Administrative Aide of the Philosophy Department, and to let you know that we are most pleased that you are joining us during the spring semester.

I need to order textbooks for your class as soon as possible, and assume from the course description you sent to Professor Ruddick that you are using the following texts:

M. de Unamuno, The Tragic Sense of Life
J. Ortega y Gasset, What is Philosophy and History as a System
J. Ferrater Mora, Being and Death

The other reading materials seems to be an article in a text by M. Edie and an article in the American Philosophical Quarterly. Therefore, I presume the students would only be required to purchase the three books above.

Please give me a call at your convenience so that I can check over these matters with you. Thank you very much and I look forward to meeting you soon.

Sincerely yours,

Deborah Bula
Administrative Aide