Dear Mr. Ferrater Mora,

I had delayed in writing a formal thank you letter to you, not because I needed time to think on something nice to say about your lectures, but rather because I had planned to see you to invite you to a follow-up discussion which we were planning to have, but which did not materialize.

I do want to thank you, however, on behalf of the Interfaith Association, for a splendid evening. The turnout, as you saw, was excellent, and I'm sure that no one who came was disappointed. Marcel's philosophy may be caching somewhat in depth, but the issues which were raised were certainly interesting as grounds for speculation. I only regret that the discussion had to be cut short in order to permit people to dash over to the other lecture.

Sincerely

[signatura]
Vice President
