Dear Professor Ferrater Mora:

Thank you very much for your answer^{to} my recent queries.

I now send what has every prospect of being the last batch, and shall again be obliged to you for considering them.

You did send me the quotation from T. E. Lawrence. As to the one from von Scheffel, you refer to it in the text as a "slightly paraphrased." So I took that as warrant to translate your translation; this I did; so I do not think that I need to see the original.

In your letter to me of August 26th, you speak of probably adding two new notes for Chapter V or VI of Part II - one on the growing world population and the other on automation. If you still intend to add these, may I have them soon please?

With cordial regards,

Yours sincerely,
Willard R. Trask
