Dear Professor Ferrater-Mora:

I am very glad that I can write you that as far as our new journal is concerned things are developing very well. Our subscription brochure is ready and goes in the mail next week. According to our original time-table the copy for the first issue must go to the printer the first week of October. To date we have not yet received any contributions in the Spanish language although several Spanish-speaking philosophers have promised us an article for one of the first issues.

If by any chance you have received any articles we would appreciate your forwarding them to us as soon as possible. If there should be more than one, I would appreciate very much having your opinion on the hierarchy of the importance of these contributions, since we want to use the very best in our first contact with the public.

If you have not received any contributions thus far, would you be willing yourself to send us a study in Spanish. It is a lot to ask in addition to your other work, but we feel that an original study in Spanish ought to appear in the first issue of our journal. Any suggestion to solve this problem will be very welcome.

We are planning to adhere to the printer's October 1 deadline so that the first issue may appear in January, 1968, as he promised if we get the copy to him on schedule.

Hope to hear from you soon. Meanwhile continued success in your work.

Cordial Greetings,

Joseph J. Kockelmann
